Description

This document houses any diagrams that the Federalist project requires to communicate user goals, needs, and any design documentation to guide the design and development of the Federalist platform.

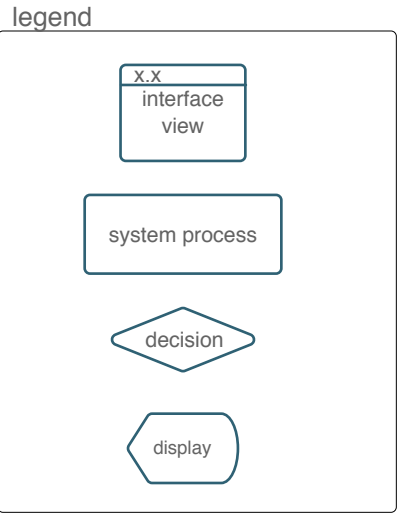

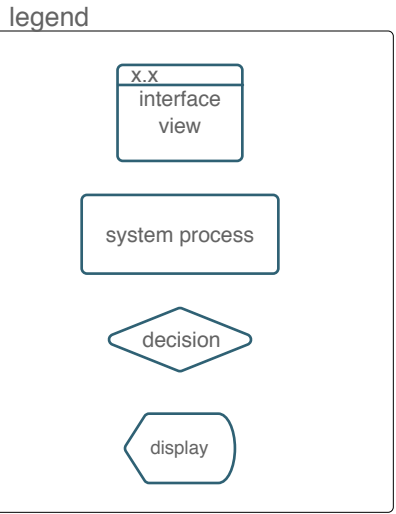

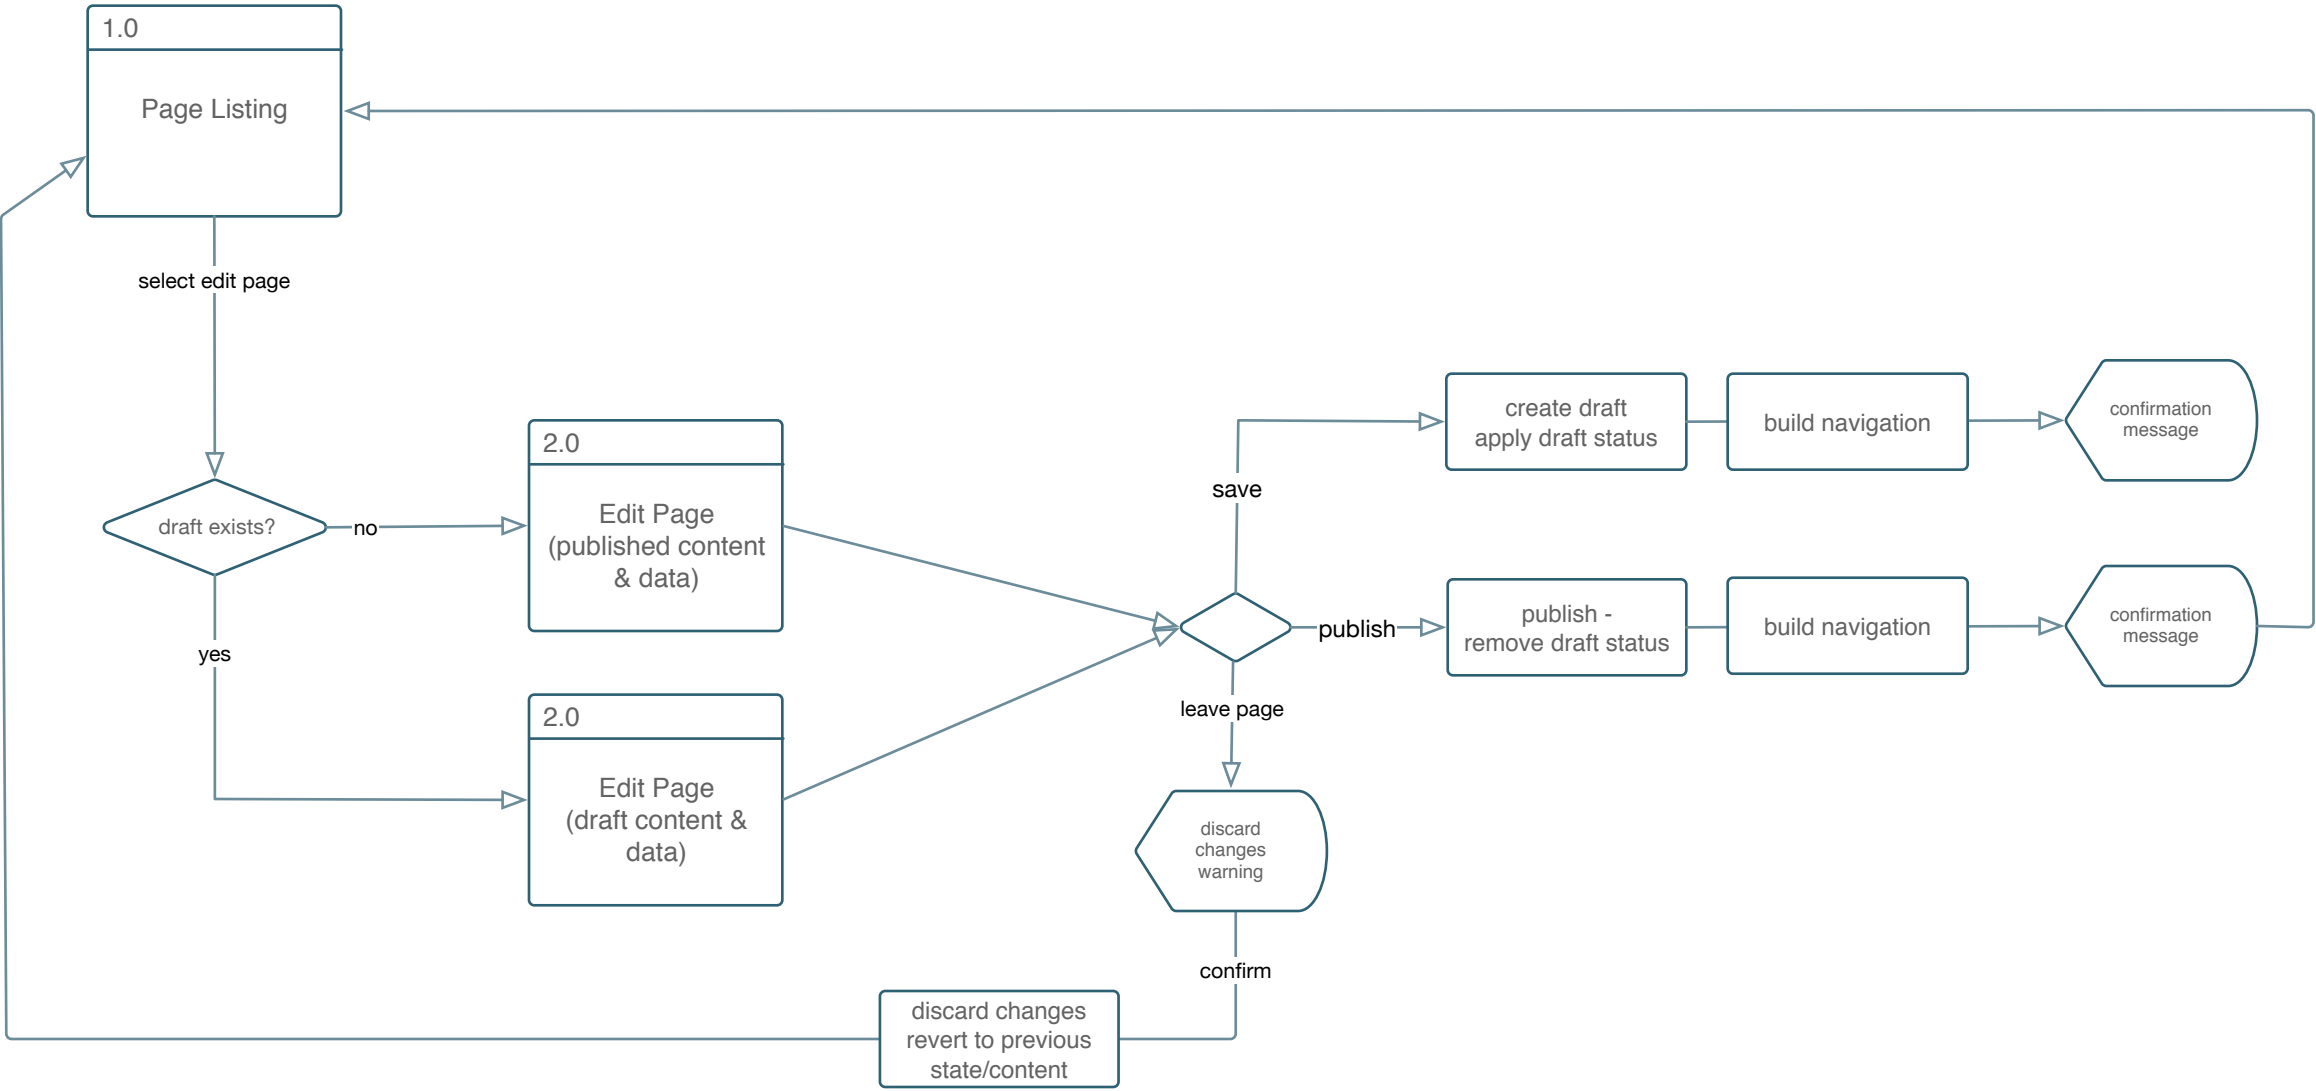

Legend

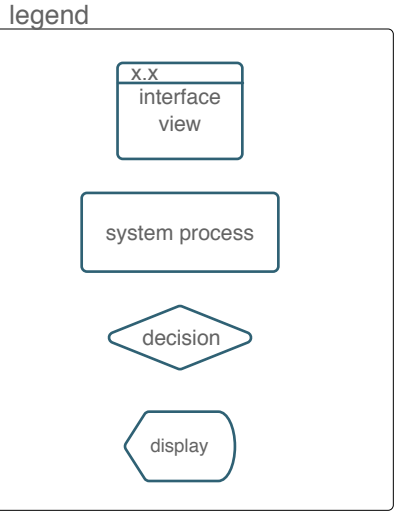

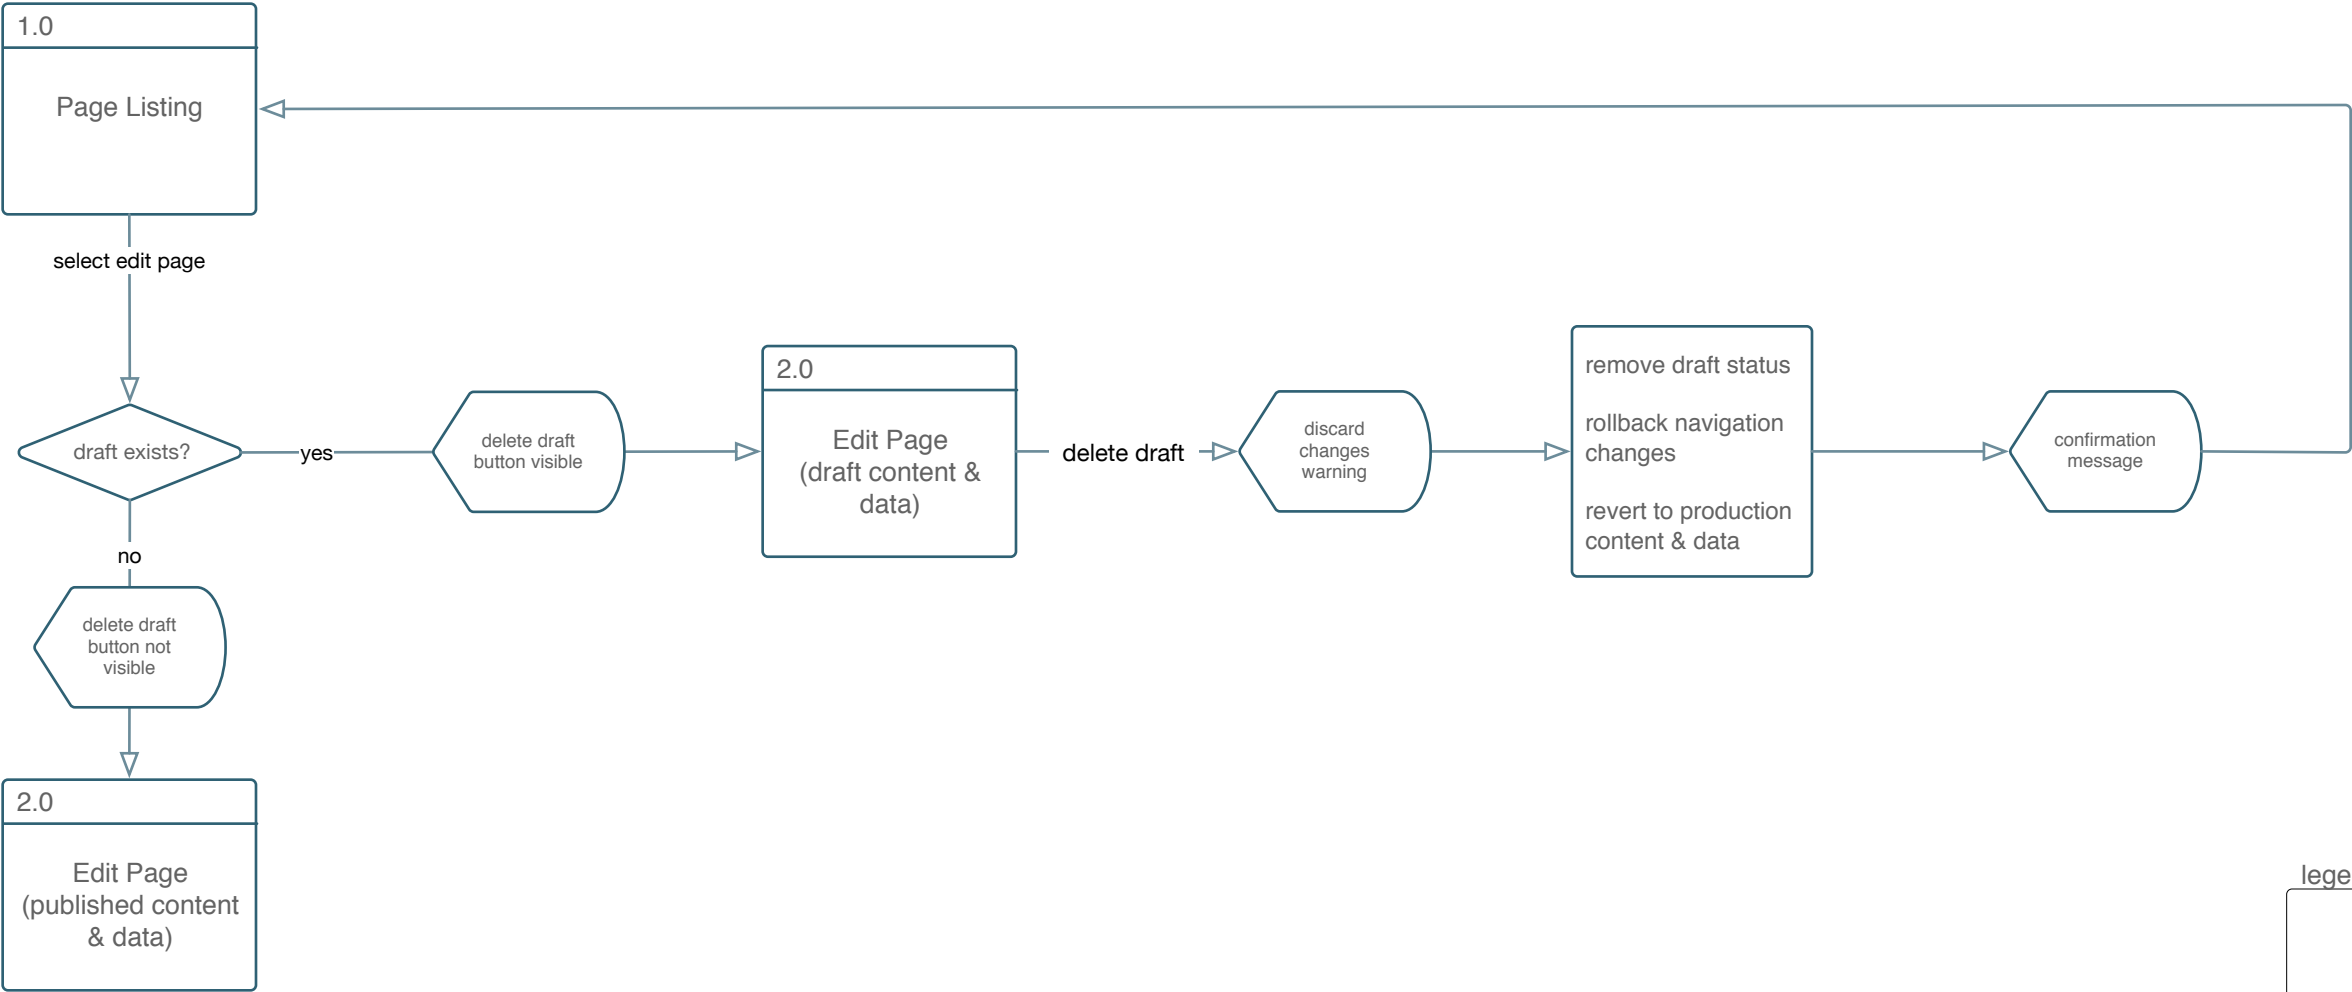

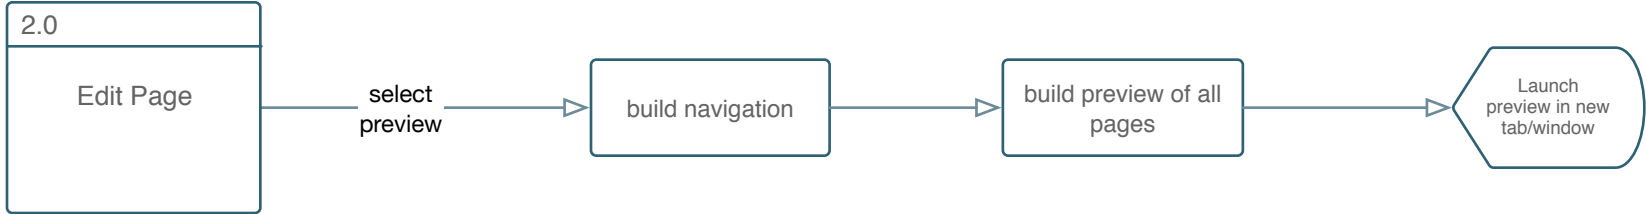

Note: When a page is created, it is added to the 'not linked' section of the site page list (1.0). When the user puts the page in the hierarchy, they will be asked to select whether a link to the page should be included in the navigation menu and/or the footer.

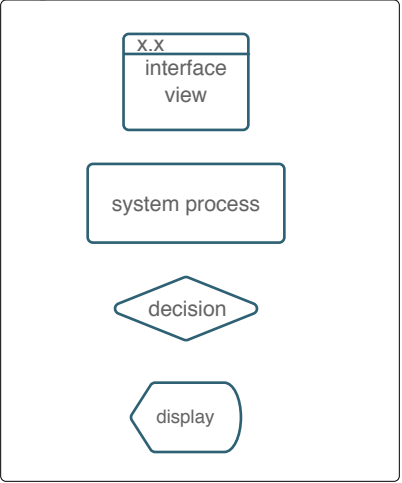

If a draft state exists for a page, display the draft version in the preview else, display the production state. Navigation should be updated to include any draft changes.

This allows the user to preview the entire draft state including the navigation changes before publishing. If the user wishes to see the published view the live site is available.

Annotation

1. Operations buttons only display when they are relevant to the items selected in the list below. If there are multiple pages selected, only display the operations that are relevant to ALL of the selected pages.

2. If a page is in focus, arrow keys can be used to move it in the sitemap.

- The tab key is used to move focus to elements in each row so that all controls are keyboard accessible.

- To toggle a checkbox while in focus, use spacebar

- Enter key simulates a mouse click on an element when in focus

Delete draft only displays when all selected pages have drafts.

If user selects a parent, expand the children so user can see that only parent is selected. When a parent is deleted, the children are promoted.

Children are not selected automatically when user selects a parent.

Unassigned Pages List: FEDERALIST

New pages are placed in the unassigned list by default when they are created. A user must place them in the site map above for them to be publishable.

All unassigned pages are in draft state since they cannot be published until they are placed in the sitemap

Unassigned Pages

Place pages in the sitemap above by dragging or using arrow keys.
